

About Br. Fuad

Education:

Toledo University
B.A. in Liberal Arts

University of Phoenix
Currently enrolled to receive a higher degree in educational studies

Personal Info:

Fuad Alnatsheh has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Liberal Arts, and is currently enrolled in University of Phoenix pursuing a degree in higher education with a concentration in Administrative Education. He has received 72+ Professional Development hours in topics that range from educational practices, to administrative strategies', as well as behavioral interventions. He is furthermore a 4th degree black belt taekwondo master. Br. Fuad is currently the principal of Noor Academy of Arizona. He has been the principal for the past four years, and was previously a Physical Education and Arabic teacher at NAA for three years. He has also been an educator in the physical education field since 1997. Through his years of experience, and with a new and advanced approach to education, Br. Fuad's educational philosophy comprises that students should be provided with an educational environment that is supportive, ingenious, encouraging, stimulating and nurturing. Thus, through supporting the educators and the students, and with constant implementation of the most effective and advanced methods of teaching, students are provided with a wholesome educational approach that addresses all the phases of development. His professional goals include researching and implementing new strategies that enrich the educational experience of the students, as well as service the teachers with more skills, as they oblige to the common core standards of Arizona. Br. Fuad lives in the valley with his family, and his wife is also an educator. His hobbies include golfing, and he loves spending time with his family.